CREW UNORGANIZED AND UNABLE TO HANDLE BOATS

Steward of Titanic Testifies That There Had Been No Boat Drill Held During the Entire Trip Across Ocean

MANY CHURCHES TO HOLD MEMORIAL SERVICES

Investigation Into Great Disaster by Senate Committee Continued Today---Wireless Operator of Carpathia Recalled---Endeavoring to Fix Responsibility for False Report of the Saving of Entire Crew and Passengers.

New York, Apr. 20.—Nearly a week has passed the Titanic, the greatest marine achievement in history of the world, sank in mid-ocean. Much of her story is yet untold, and many days will pass before the world will fully realize or comprehend the significance of the disaster, which must rank in many respects as the most stupendous in modern history.

The number of dead will probably never be exactly determined, inasmuch as the complete passenger list went down with the vessel. The number of survivors is listed at 705 by the report of Captain Rostrom of the Carpathia. The White Star line officials believe the death list will approximately total 1635.

The narratives gathered piecemeal from the 705 survivors pay a tribute without precedent to the bravery of the men and women of these modern days, and show an impulse unstudied, unassuming and instinctive alike in the steerage, passenger, stoker and millionaire. By common consent, the churches of the world will set aside their pulpits tomorrow for the reverent consideration of the disaster and for mourning for the lost. As for the needs of the living, ample provision is being made.

The relief funds being gathered in New York and London already total up in the hundreds of thousands. Most of the rescued steerage passengers were penniless, but have barely come to realize the generosity and hospitality of America.

The most complete story of the Titanic's fate yet obtained is being rapidly gathered in New York by the members of the senate investigating committee. The committee has already listened to the testimony of J. Bruce Ismay, managing director of the White Star line, Captain Rostrom of the Carpathia, Charles W. Lightoller, second officer of the Titanic and others. The witnesses called for today's session include H. J. Patman, third officer of the Titanic, J. T. Hoxhall, fourth officer of the Titanic, G. Lowe, also an official and fifteen members of the Titanic crew.

There is little disposition to criticize Captain Smith for following the ocean line where he met disaster. As a matter of fact the Titanic was 60 miles south of the regular course and was even in danger of collision with the east-bound steamers which are entitled to the right of way there according to the rules of the sea. The new route east bound, provides that steamships shall dip to latitude 38-20 on the first third of their course, making a total distance from New York to Fastnet of 3,000 miles where the distance is now reckoned at 2,858.

There was some criticism among survivors today of the Titanic crew's inability to handle the life boats. Albeit Major, steward of the Titanic, admitted that there had been no boat drills and that the life boats were poorly handled.

Another story told by members of the Titanic crew is of a fire which is said to have started in one of the coal bunkers of the vessel shortly after she left Southampton, which was not extinguished until Saturday afternoon. The story of what injuries were sustained by the Titanic in striking the iceberg that caused her to sink has not yet been told, and may forever remain a mystery. Second Officer Lightoller says the Titanic did not break in two, but made a dive diagonally into the sea and when half under the waves there were two explosions which he believes to have been the boilers.

The survivors in the hospitals are reported to be doing nicely today. J. Bruce Ismay discussed with interviewers the work of the senate investigating committee which he charged as being "brutally unfair." He said, "I cannot understand this senate inquiry. They are going at it in a manner that seems unjust and the injustice is heaviest on me. Why, I cannot even defend myself by having my counsel ask questions. I tell you that if I thought that in the slightest way I had done anything wrong I would never have another happy moment. I took my chance of escape when it came to me. I did not seek it. There were only two classes on the ship, the crew and the passengers, and I was a passenger."

New York, April 20.—The first witness before the investigating committee today was Thomas Cottam, the wireless operator on the Carpathia, who was recalled.

"What was the last message sent to the Titanic?" asked Senator Smith. "We sent word to have the life boats ready, that our life boats were ready, and that we were steering to them as fast as we could. I reported the entire matter to the steamer Baltic at 10:20 Monday morning. I told them we had been to the wreck and had picked up as many passengers as we could."

"Did you send any message that all passengers had been saved and that the Titanic was being towed to Halifax?"

"No, sir."

"Nor anything like it?"

"No, sir."

"Did you know of the White Star line sending Monday a dispatch to Representative J. H. Hughes of Huntington, W. Va., saying that the Titanic was proceeding to Halifax and that the passengers would probably land there Wednesday; that all were safe. Did they not obtain that information from you?"

"No, sir."

"Nor did you know of their obtaining it from any other Carpathia operator?"

Mr. Cottam said he was at work from Monday until Wednesday.

"Did you do any sending during that time?"

"Yes, sir. He sent the list of third-class passengers to the cruiser Chester."

"Any other messages?"

"Several, but I do not remember what they were. The records are on the Carpathia."

New York, April 20.—J. Bruce Ismay and other officers of the White Star line were subpoenaed by the senate investigating committee to appear before it in Washington at 10:30 Monday morning. The investigation in New York will be concluded today.

200 DROWN WHEN RIVER DYKE BROKE

Jackson, Miss., April 20.—Reports reached here today that 200 persons have been drowned in Bolivar county, Miss., by the flood which swept through that section when the river dyke broke near Buelah. Bolivar county is covered with water and efforts to verify the reports are meeting obstacles.

There has been great industrial development in Austria in the last eight years, and the standard of living has been raised materially.

She got to the dock about 9 p. m.

and it seemed as though the heavens were trying to drown the survivors through rain, as I never saw it rain so hard and long as it did yesterday and last night.

"The crowds that got on the pier through passes, amounted to several thousand and confusion and pandemonium reigned supreme. I finally got up the gang plank but Mr. Nagle was left behind in the rush. I worked my way back to the ropes and guard line that had been put up and pulled him through by main strength. Mr. Williams was also on the pier but I did not see him until after all the survivors had been permitted to leave the ship and were in the hands of the relief societies."

"I am sending you copies of the New York papers so you can read what the survivors say. The stories are somewhat inconsistent but I guess that is to be expected under the strain and excitement through which many of them passed."

"New York generally is in mourning on account of many prominent New Yorkers who were lost when the ship went down. I had a couple of hours sleep in the couch this morning in the office and I expect to go home pretty soon and get some rest."

Mr. Moore returned to New York last Monday after a fifteen day visit with his wife and family here and went on duty Thursday morning in time to take charge of the landing of the passengers of the ill-fated liner.

Clark and Roosevelt win in the Nebraska primaries

Omaha, Neb., April 10.—Colonel Roosevelt seemed to be the favorite if there is anything in the statewide presidential preference primaries held in Nebraska yesterday, and the indications are that Champ Clark was the choice of the Democrats.

The supporters of Governor Harmon practically abandoned hope today when the returns from Douglas county, of the Second district, showed that the Ohio governor's strength there had been greatly over-estimated. Clark's supporters were surprised by the showing in the First district, in which Mr. Bryan resided. This was thought to be a Wilson stronghold.

NEWARK MAN WAS IN CHARGE OF LANDING OF TITANIC'S PASSENGERS

Mrs. George Wendell Moore, who is living with her aunt of 66 North Morris street, has received a letter from her husband, who is inspector of immigration, port of New York, in which he describes the conditions attending the landing of the 705 passengers rescued from the sunken ocean liner Titanic.

Mr. Moore's official position put him in close touch with the passengers and in his letter he states that he was on duty most of Thursday night, handling the surviving passengers. His letter, referring to the event, is as follows:

"I was on duty most of the night handling the passengers from the Titanic which were brought to port by the Carpathia. There were 202 first cabin and 115 second cabin and 178 steerage passengers besides 210 members of the crew, making 705 people saved. I see the papers state 747 were saved, but this is a mistake as I saw every passenger who came down the gang plank. We made no examination of them whatever nor did not even attempt to check them up. The purser had prepared a list with names, ages and destination and that was all the information we wanted."

"Secretary Nagle was over from Washington and was with me when I went on board as soon as the gang plank was put down. It had been decided not to board her down the bay, so we went to the dock, Pier 34, North river and waited for her there."

MRS. CARL WEIANT'S RELATIVES TELL OF GREAT SEA HORROR

Were in Their Stateroom When Titanic Struck the Iceberg That Sent Monster Ship to the Bottom of the Ocean

MEN IN LIFEBOAT PUT THEIR COATS AROUND WOMEN

Were About a Mile Away When Explosion on Titanic Was Heard and It Appeared as If Ship Was Lifted Up and Broken in Half---Many Pathetic Incidents Occurred.

Mrs. Carl A. Weiانت has just received the following letter from her aunt, Miss Kornelia Andrews of Hudson-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., who with Mrs. Weiانت's mother and her cousin, Miss Gretchen Longley, was rescued from the Titanic. The letter was written Thursday on board the rescue ship Carpathia, and was mailed when the Carpathia reached New York:

My Dear: You have seen everything by this time in the papers, but I want you to have a single word from me about our terrible experience, now when I have a moment.

Oh, my dear, may you never have to pass through such frightful hours.

It was at 12 midnight when the crash came and we were all in bed. I rushed to my door and saw the ice crystals all over, they having come in through the porthole next to mine and I knew then it was an iceberg, but they told us immediately that there was no danger and of course it never entered our heads for one moment that a magnificent ship like the Titanic could sink, so we foolishly all went to bed without a fear.

After a while we heard a commotion in the corridor and went out to inquire, and then they told us to put on life preservers and come out in five minutes. That was every moment we had to get ready. Gretchen put on stockings and slippers and not a single article of underclothing, but a cloth skirt and waist, and we had very little more, but we put on our fur coats. I did not wait to even put on a hat, but I did rescue three hair pins, and we went up stairs, not even then frightened. We finally got in the fourth boat. There was no panic, but no discipline. We had one sailor, and then any man who could row was allowed to get in and so a Chinese and an Armenian got in, saying they could row, but they could not, so Gretchen assisted the sailor on one side and two or three women on the other, until her hands were frozen stiff. We pulled away from the ship so that we would not be drawn in with the suction should the ship go down. All women and children in the boats, and those ignorant men put in our boats while those splendid Americans stood and were not allowed to come with us. Oh, it would have broken your heart to have seen them standing there so bravely and waving farewell to their wives and daughters. It would have made you proud of your countrymen.

There was Mr. Thayer, president of the Pennsylvania railroad. Mr. John Jacob Astor, having to wave farewell to his beautiful wife, Major Butt and hundreds of others, who probably knew there was no hope for them. We have never seen them since. We rowed off a ways and in less than an hour there was a mighty explosion. The boilers had exploded and the ship was broken right in two, and then, my dear, the screams and shrieks as 1000 of the steerage went down, and I suppose, the crew and the officers and all the Americans. All my life I will hear those shrieks. We were in the safety boat from 12 o'clock until 9 the next morning, and all that saved us was the calmness and beauty of the night. About dawn a wind came up and great waves commenced to appear, and then we almost despaired. The one man who could row was almost exhausted, and Gretchen stuck to it until her strength was gone. Then, as it seemed, a hundred miles away, we saw a ship, the Carpathia, and it commenced to pick up boats as soon as it could, but this was only dawn, and it was not until 9 or 9:30 o'clock that we were pulled up over the sides on a rope ladder. But such sights and sounds! The boat next to us put a lot of their passengers in our lifeboat, and then they picked up 17 out of the water. Two died almost immediately and one went mad. A little dead baby floated past us. Two boats of women and children capsized and were lost. No one could rescue them.

And all this, my dear, was most wickedly criminal. We were in a sea of ice, some of the fields over a mile long, and no one, apparently, was watching for them. We cannot hear that anyone saw this ice until the collision, and the night was clear and cold. The captain had attended a dinner given for him, and perhaps one officer was on the bridge but we were going too fast to stop suddenly. And there was no one to command the boats.

Here on the Carpathia we see all the time such things. Nearly every other woman is weeping for husband or son, and it is all past description. They are kind, so kind. I have had three staterooms offered me, but there are others who need them so much more, and so we sleep on the floor in the library with 20 or 30 others, babies crying because both parents were lost, and others because their mothers were gone.

And to think it was all so unnecessary. No lifeboats for half the passengers. Every passenger will unite with me in this fearful condition of things. Of course we are so thankful for our escape, but the sorrow everywhere saddens you, so you can think of nothing else. We carried everything we possessed with us, so we haven't a stitch or anything to crawl into when we get home. And we had bought beautiful furs over each two of three dresses. But we don't think of that—that all amounts to nothing. One lady gave me a handkerchief, and Oh, what joy to have one. A man, a Mr. Mauro, gave me a tooth brush. He had bought ten to take to Italy. He has a beautiful villa out of Genoa, and is most charming. Another lady gave me some hairpins, and Gretchen found an old school friend here who has fitted her out with some clothes and a hat, so you see, they are all most kind. I do not believe I can ever write again all these things, and I shall not be in Hudson for a week or two. I must buy a few things to wear. I could at least have saved a few things to wear. If we had known when the crash came that there was danger, we could at least have dressed properly, but we were not notified until the last moment. The thing for which the line should be censured the most is, of course, that only one-third of the passengers had any arrangements made for their safety; only 22 boats and sixty could not have taken in more than two-thirds. Is that not a perfect crime, even if we did not have enough clothing.

Up in the garret

Is the cost of living high? Well, let's cut it down a little this Spring.

Instead of buying new furniture, let's take the first rainy day and rummage in that storehouse of romance, the attic. Let's collect together old chairs, dressers, rockers, and the like and see what can be done to save them.

You'll be surprised at the things you can make good for another year by a little amateur upholstering or cabinet work and a can of

SPARTAN STAIN

"THE FAULTLESS WOOD FINISH"

—You'll be surprised at the fun you'll get out of the work.

Spartan Stain is a varnish stain that beautifies, protects and disinfects the woodwork. With it, you can refinish in any color desired, FLOORS, DOORS, FURNITURE and ALL woodwork. It flows evenly, without lapping; dries quickly, sets slowly. Produces a hard, lustrous, lasting surface in any color desired.

DIRECTIONS.—Have the surface clean and dry. If dark spots show, sand-paper them off.

Apply with soft, flat brush, in direction of grain.

If desired to use a light finish on dark floors, a ground coat must first be applied. Natural grain of wood can be reproduced with one of our special graining outfits. Get a can and get busy.

Men in the lifeboat gave us their garments to protect us."

A New York message quotes Miss Andrews as follows:

"In the first boat many husbands got away with their wives. The reason for this was that at that time there were not enough women on deck to fill the boats. The officers knew the desperate need of the situation and the urgency of getting the boats off quickly, so they filled the boats with those on the deck and got them away. Of the husbands who remained behind after putting their wives in the lifeboats, only three were re-united.

"We were a mile away from the Titanic when there was a great explosion. It appeared to me as though the boilers had blown up and the Titanic had been lifted up amidstships and broken in half. This is the way it appeared to me.

"The boat ahead of us picked up seventeen persons from the water. The cold was so severe that two of them died. One of these was a woman. A man who was picked up out of the water went mad. The men in the lifeboats took off their coats and gave them to the women, who were scantily clad. Fortunately some of those rescued had brought blankets with them from their state-rooms when they came up on deck.

"The most pathetic thing I heard was that on one of the boats—a collapsible life-boat holding from sixteen to twenty persons—the people were up to their knees in water for hours so that one man's legs were frozen and eight men died. The eight men were thrown overboard to lighten the boat and to keep it from being swamped.

"My impression is that the Titanic struck an obstruction at twenty minutes to 12 and sank after about two hours. There was ice all around us. I can never begin to tell of the feeling which came over us when we saw the Carpathia approaching us in the gray of the early morning. It was about 8 o'clock I think.

OLD-TIME REMEDY

DARKENS THE HAIR

Gives Color, Lustre to Faded and Gray Hair—Dandruff Quickly Removed.

For generations Sage and Sulphur have been used for hair and scalp troubles. Almost everyone knows the value of such a combination for keeping the hair a good even color, for curing dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair, and for promoting the growth of the hair. Years ago the only way to get a Hair Tonic of this kind was to make it in the home, which was troublesome and not always satisfactory. Nowadays, almost any up-to-date druggist can supply his patrons with a ready-to-use product, scientifically prepared in perfectly equipped laboratories.

An ideal preparation of this sort is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, in which Sage and Sulphur are combined with other valuable remedies for scalp troubles and, thin, weak hair that is losing its color or color gradually coming back, your scalp will feel better, the dandruff will soon be gone, and in less than a month's time there will be a wonderful difference in your hair.

Don't neglect your hair if it is full of dandruff, losing its color or coming out. Get a fifty-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur from your druggist, and see what a few days' treatment will do for you. All druggists sell it, under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented. Frank D. Hall, agent.

A TREACHEROUS TROUBLE. Kidney diseases are very dangerous. They come on silently, gain ground rapidly and cause thousands of deaths that could have been prevented by proper treatment in the beginning. Nature gives early warnings of kidney disease—backache, twinges of pain when stooping or lifting, headaches and urinary disorders. If these symptoms are unheeded, there is grave danger of dropsy or fatal Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills have earned a reputation for effectiveness in kidney troubles, and are known and recommended the world over. Newark testimony proves the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills to our readers.

Mrs. Charles Cole, 25 1-2 S. Third Street, Newark, Ohio, says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills with very good results and I can recommend them. My kidneys were weak and I had backaches. I used Doan's Kidney Pills, obtained at A. F. Crayton & Co.'s Drug Store and they made me better in every way."

TIME FOR ACTION.

The Titanic disaster will be investigated thoroughly of course and the indications are the facts will disclose that the accident was due in a large measure to neglect and to carelessness. The life saving apparatus is believed to have been inadequate and there is no reason why any ship should go at full speed when running in the vicinity of a sea of icebergs. The Titanic has taught a lesson that all steamship lines will profit by and already a movement is on foot to abandon the northern course at this season of the year and to take the longer or southern route across the Atlantic. No doubt the disaster will check the craze for great speed and perhaps for great vessels as well. Here is a suggestion that may be practical.

Every day vessels are leaving the ports of the great coast cities bound for the same ports on the other side. Why not form an international time-card so that the sailing may be made for mutual protection? Have the passenger boats leave in pairs, say an hour apart. Each equipped with wireless telegraphy, a disabled vessel could send the distress signal and receive prompt and effective assistance. It happened that the Carpathia was within a few hours run to the Titanic and it also happened that the wireless operator on the Carpathia was awake and heard the call over the waves for help, but what would have happened if the Carpathia had been farther away or if the operator had retired? Instead of 745 survivors it is probable there would have been none. The Titanic horror points the way to a reform in sea travel and the public will insist that it shall come in some practical form.

The accounts of the disaster as related by survivors of the Titanic are appalling and the heartstrings are touched by the recital of heroism of the crew and the passengers. It is now when the details of the horror are fresh in the minds of all that speedy and effective action should be taken to reduce the chances of a repetition of such a catastrophe to a minimum.

It is worth while to remember that only a small minority of the Republican voters of Pennsylvania thought it worth while to attend the primaries Saturday last, notwithstanding the hysterics of the third-term campaigners.

The only promise that is valuable is the promise that can be kept. This statement came from Roosevelt only a few days ago, but he omitted to mention a single promise that he ever kept himself.

Here is consolation for Democrats: In making a campaign for a third term, Roosevelt to a demand, Theodore Roosevelt has antagonized a large element of his party to an extent that means his own utter defeat at the election, if nominated, and the improbability of any Republican being elected to the Presidency this year.

From the third term point of view there is no moral obliquity in the effort to persuade delegates from Northern and Southern States who have been instructed for Taft to turn tail on their benighted constituencies and vote for the Rough Rider. Colonel Roosevelt's candidacy was impossible without an open violation of his pledge under no circumstances to become a candidate for a third term. Why should a delegate hesitate in a matter of pledge-breaking when the candidate does not hesitate to lead the way?

France takes the lead of all other countries in wine production, with Italy as its closest competitor. For 1911 there was a total of 1,427,196,309 gallons of wine made in France, valued at $304,663,715. In Italy the production of wine for 1911 was 1,117,441,100 gallons. There are over eleven million acres of land in Italy set apart for wine-grape cultivation. It is the boast of both these great wine-producing nations that their people are more temperate than the average of other civilized peoples.

The man with a grasping nature seldom gets a chance to embrace the opportunity.

COST OF VOTES FOR THIRD TERM "PROGRESSIVE"

The New York World calls attention to the fact that the published Roosevelt campaign expenses at the recent city primaries foot up $39,126.75. As Teddy received 15,000 votes, the cost was practically $1 a vote. In commenting on the fact the World says:

"Mr. Roosevelt was fortunate in having rich backers. George W. Perkins, formerly of J. P. Morgan & Co., organizer of the Harvester Trust and director of the Steel Trust; Frank A. Munsey, the associate of Mr. Perkins in the Steel Trust pool, and Alexander S. Cochran, director of the Northern Pacific Railway and trustee of the Union Trust Company, each contributed $15,000 to the Roosevelt campaign fund. Between them they furnished three of the four dollars that every Roosevelt vote cost at the recent primaries.

"Under such a system and in such a contest, what chance as a candidate would a poor man have, or a candidate less lavishly financed than was Mr. Roosevelt? What possible chance would La Follette have as a Progressive candidate for the nomination for President if it cost $4 apiece to get votes at the primaries? How many men aspiring to office could find political promoters ready to give $15,000 each for use in a single primary election in one city of only one State? How much would it cost to carry on a Presidential primary campaign throughout the country?

"Does $1 a vote represent Mr. Roosevelt's system of 'pure democracy'?"

The pecuniary loss, as a result of the sinking of the Titanic, is not to be considered as at all comparable in cause or consequence with the frightful loss of life. None the less it is enormous. It will never be fully ascertained. The most conservative estimates place it at about $25,000,000 for life and marine insurance, leaving unconsidered the loss in the mails and on personal belongings.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have running ears or infected hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; hence cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous lining.

One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

CARDINAL FARLEY OF NEW YORK IS THREE SCORE AN TEN

In the town of Newton Hamilton, county of Armagh, province of Ulster, Ireland, far across the dark blue ocean where the billows cease from bounding and the sea-sick are at rest, a boy was born just seventy years ago today to the parents of Cardinal John Murphy Farley. And sure that boy was the future Cardinal himself. How he happened to be born in Ulster, in the north of the Emerald Isle, is beyond me, unless it was that his mother was there at the time.

Today the venerable Cardinal, who only recently was invested with the robes of office of the Sacred College and returned from Rome to receive in New York the most enthusiastic welcome ever extended to an American, will be congratulated by Catholics the world over on attaining to three score years and ten.

"Peace-maker" sums up in a word the career of the distinguished churchman, and he is all the more to be honored because "peace" is a word the average Irishman has little use for. As a lad "Little Johnny" as he was known, often poured oil on the troubled waters, and his gentle spirit won recognition and honor even from the turbulent Ulster boys who were the companions of his youth. The parents of the future prince of the church were, like most of their neighbors, far from wealthy, but they entertained an ambition to make "Little Johnny" a priest, and with much thrift and saving of pennies and shillings managed to send him to St. Marcellan's College, which, as everybody knows, is just beyond Monaghan. He had a thirst for learning that has never been quenched, and stood first in his classes, winning such medals as were offered with the ease born of the scholar. The few of his classmates now living—and mightily proud they are at having been the associates of "Johnny"—recall that he was never a participant in the frequent fights that marred the school-astic calm at St. Marcellan's and that he took little interest in athletic pastimes. For pure and undisturbed wit and humor, however, they say the future cardinal had no equal in the school, and in the role of comedian he won the admiration of his fellows. In the intervals of his schooling young Farley worked in a grocery and wine shop, thus helping to eke out the cost of his education. The Cardinal has never forgotten his aboriginal misadventure, for forty years, as priest, bishop, archbishop and cardinal, has been a frequent and liberal contributor to St. Marcellan's.

Cardinal Farley's father was the keeper of a public house, or "pub," as they call them in Ireland—a common saloon and tavern. He died when "Johnny" was still a youth, but an uncle in New York, Patrick Murphy, who had made considerable money in the clothing business and desired to see some member of the family in the priesthood, contributed $500 toward completing the education of the nephew. With this sum and further assistance from his uncle young Farley came to America and became a student at St. John's college, Fordham, New York City, and later at St. Joseph's Seminary in Troy. Then followed four years in the American college at Rome, and in 1870 came the great day when he was ordained a priest, the ceremony an ambition to make "Little Johnny" a priest, and with much thrift and saving of pennies and shillings managed to send him to St. Marcellan's College, which, as everybody knows, is just beyond Monaghan. He had a thirst for learning that has never been quenched, and stood first in his classes, winning such medals as were offered with the ease born of the scholar. The few of his classmates now living—and mightily proud they are at having been the associates of "Johnny"—recall that he was never a participant in the frequent fights that marred the school-farewell to snow and freezein' to landscapes all congealed; this is the balmy season of which the birds have spied, no more are blizzards tearing across a land desolating; the farmer plows his field, the boy braves the bucking and dancing on all fours; the speckled hen is clucking o'er her maternal chores; the housewife is caressing around with mopstick, meaning to do the springtime cleaning, and drive the men outdoors. The ardent boys are tumbling into the swimming hole; the busy bees are humming to gain their daily toll; the candidates are standing around, one voices demanding, and to us daily hand-in-hand, the poets have collected their verses true and stale; and soon those rhymes rejected, come back to them by mail, to sell his patent washer the agent, genial goshier, hands out his line of hosh or bull con to get the kale. Oh, spring, you are a winner, the best thing on the pike! You give us greens for dinner and other things we like; you fill the land with roses, and thaw our frosted noses; we're mashed upon your poses, and hate to see you hike!

People can realize how "progressive" Roosevelt's New York city campaign was when they know that his votes cost $4 a piece.

IT DOESN'T GO IN OHIO (Columbus Dispatch.)

Mr. Bryan's invasion of Governor Harmon's own state and his speech-making within a few squares of the governor's very fireside, might be allowable in the game of politics, though in questionable taste, but when the Silver-tongued Orator of the Platte stoops to vituperation in his personal attacks upon Mr. Harmon, he offends the public sense of fair dealing, it not of decency. The bald statement that "Mr. Harmon is not fit to fill the office of constable," as uttered by Mr. Bryan, cannot but have made more friends for the Governor who holds his high office by the unprecedented majority of 100,000 voters of the state. They will resent Mr. Bryan's vituperation; it doesn't go in Ohio, and the Nebraskan must have a pretty hard case when he so far forgets himself as to resort to it even in the heat of campaign oratory.

IT DOESN'T GO IN OHIO (Columbus Dispatch.)

Mr. Bryan's invasion of Governor Harmon's own state and his speech-making within a few squares of the governor's very fireside, might be allowable in the game of politics, though in questionable taste, but when the Silver-tongued Orator of the Platte stoops to vituperation in his personal attacks upon Mr. Harmon, he offends the public sense of fair dealing, it not of decency. The bald statement that "Mr. Harmon is not fit to fill the office of constable," as uttered by Mr. Bryan, cannot but have made more friends for the Governor who holds his high office by the unprecedented majority of 100,000 voters of the state. They will resent Mr. Bryan's vituperation; it doesn't go in Ohio, and the Nebraskan must have a pretty hard case when he so far forgets himself as to resort to it even in the heat of campaign oratory.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have running ears or infected hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; hence cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous lining.

CARDINAL FARLEY OF NEW YORK IS THREE SCORE AN TEN

In the town of Newton Hamilton, county of Armagh, province of Ulster, Ireland, far across the dark blue ocean where the billows cease from bounding and the sea-sick are at rest, a boy was born just seventy years ago today to the parents of Cardinal John Murphy Farley. And sure that boy was the future Cardinal himself. How he happened to be born in Ulster, in the north of the Emerald Isle, is beyond me, unless it was that his mother was there at the time.

Today the venerable Cardinal, who only recently was invested with the robes of office of the Sacred College and returned from Rome to receive in New York the most enthusiastic welcome ever extended to an American, will be congratulated by Catholics the world over on attaining to three score years and ten.

"Peace-maker" sums up in a word the career of the distinguished churchman, and he is all the more to be honored because "peace" is a word the average Irishman has little use for. As a lad "Little Johnny" as he was known, often poured oil on the troubled waters, and his gentle spirit won recognition and honor even from the turbulent Ulster boys who were the companions of his youth. The parents of the future prince of the church were, like most of their neighbors, far from wealthy, but they entertained an ambition to make "Little Johnny" a priest, and with much thrift and saving of pennies and shillings managed to send him to St. Marcellan's College, which, as everybody knows, is just beyond Monaghan. He had a thirst for learning that has never been quenched, and stood first in his classes, winning such medals as were offered with the ease born of the scholar. The few of his classmates now living—and mightily proud they are at having been the associates of "Johnny"—recall that he was never a participant in the frequent fights that marred the school-

AMUSEMENTS

H. M. S. Pinafore to Be Seen Here.
Manager Johnson, of the Auditorium, announces that he has secured the services of the Denison Conservatory of Music and the Sheppardson Glee Club for the presentation here on Friday evening, April 25, of Gilbert and Sullivan's original Nautical Comic Opera, H. M. S. Pinafore or "The Lass that Loved a Sailor."
The production was recently presented at Granville and is said to have been one of the finest local talent affairs ever seen in this section. The first American production of H. M. S. Pinafore, the second opera written by Gilbert and Sullivan, and the most popular comic opera ever written, in the English language occurred at the Boston Museum theatre in 1878 and it was revived this season on an elaborate scale by the Messrs. Schubert and Wm. A. Brady. The sale of seats for this performance will open Wednesday at 9 and the prices will range from 25 to 50 cents.

The stand set by the Auditorium is accountable for the widespread popularity which this house has gained since the opening of the moving picture season. Their policy of good photo-plays and good music intelligently produced, has made hundreds of picture fans among Newark's social sets and every night sees many of these little parties in attendance. The large, life-like, clear pictures offered at the Auditorium cannot be excelled, and it is little wonder that this theatre is gaining such notoriety in the motion picture field.
As the summer goes on and the weather becomes hotter, numerous cooling devices will be installed, so that patrons can drop into the big playhouse on a cool day, get cooled off and at the same time enjoy an interesting program of life motion views. There are always five reels of entertaining subjects on the bill and the price of admission is so ridiculously low that one can afford to take the whole family every night in the week. The "Auditorium habit" promises to become a very popular fact this summer.

The Orpheum.

The show for the first half of next week promises to be a good one. One of the features is comedy sketch, "A Lesson at 11 p. m.," offered by Frederick Hallen and Mollie Fuller, assisted by Eddie Simmons. The famous mimic, Martyr, is also billed. There will be two other features and a motion picture. Continuous motion pictures Sunday.

SOCIETY

Miss Lillian Kammerer is entertaining the members of the Wednesday Afternoon Sewing club this afternoon at her home in West Church street.

Miss Nettie Swern entertained a few friends Thursday evening at her home in Oakwood avenue in honor of Mrs. E. J. Stickle of Keaton, O. The evening was delightfully spent and at 10 o'clock a dainty repast was served. Flowers were given as favors.

The first annual banquet of the Licking county, Ohio, Wesleyan University club was held on Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the social rooms of the First M. E. church. The banquet was attended by the alumni, former students and friends of the University and a most entertaining program was rendered. The following menu was served:

Veal Croquettes	Gelatin Relish
Creamed Potatoes	Peas
White Bread	Jelly
Olives	Pickles

Sherbert	Cake
Coffee	Mints

Following the serving of the menu the following session of talks and toasts was held, Mr. E. S. Randolph, '95, acting as toastmaster.

SAIL IN PAIRS

An editorial for Saturday's Advocate, written Friday evening, makes the same suggestion presented in the following communication, received Saturday afternoon from Dr. S. C. Priest. The doctor says:

"All kinds of remedies to prevent ocean disasters will now be in order. There appears to me one remedy that would actually prevent any loss of life, and, besides, save the most valuable part of the cargo in case of fire or collision, either with ship, iceberg or derelict. Ships could sail in pairs and be within hailing distance of one another at all times. An accident could not occur to both at the same time and when to one some accident did happen, relief would be at hand. Ship owners would lose nothing by this method, as their ships would do the same amount of work in company as they would while going singly and opposite to each other."

MOTORCYCLE ACCIDENT

Smith Crego, an employee of the Schaus grocery, was riding on his motorcycle with his wife Friday evening and narrowly escaped a serious injury. The machine has a chair attachment for a second passenger and the couple was in Charles street, when the machine skidded and struck a barn, the couple being thrown to the ground. Both escaped injury, but the machine was badly damaged.

The Best Proof That Coffee Hurts

TALES THAT ARE TOLD.

"I was one of the kind who wouldn't believe that coffee was hurting me," says a N. Y. woman. "You just couldn't convince me its use was connected with the heart and stomach trouble I suffered from most of the time" (Tea contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee, and is just as harmful). "My trouble finally got so bad I had to live on milk and toast almost entirely for four years. Still I loved the coffee and wouldn't believe it could do such damage."

"What I needed was to quit coffee and take nourishment in such form my stomach could digest. I had read much about Postum, but never thought it would fit my case until one day I decided to quit coffee and give it a trial and make sure about it. So I got a package and carefully followed the directions."

"Soon I began to get better and was able to eat carefully selected foods without the aid of penson or other digests and it was not long until I was really a new woman physically."

"Now I am healthy, hearty and sound, can eat anything and everything that comes along, and I know this wonderful change is all due to my having quit Postum and got the nourishment I needed through this delicious Postum in place of the dangerous coffee and tea."

"My wonder is why everyone don't give up coffee and the troubles that go with it and build themselves up as I have done, with Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Easy to prove by 10 days' trial of Postum in place of coffee. The reward is big and worth the test.

POSTUM

When such persons find relief from coffee troubles, and the way back to old-time health and comfort, they have something to say worth while—

Columbus for the May Festival on the 13th and 14th of next month is announced by the Columbus Oratorio Society, under whose auspices the big event will be given. H. H. Shirer, president of the association, announces that they will arrange to secure hotel or room accommodations for any one from out of town attending the May Festival. The Oratorio Society makes an attractive offer for season tickets, and as there will be three concerts, one Monday evening, another Tuesday afternoon and the last Tuesday evening, it will be necessary for those attending the entire series to spend at least one night in Columbus. Any one who desires to do so may write the society, stating the location and the price he is willing to pay for accommodations, and if they can be had, $5.00 per night will be made without any additional cost to the patron. Inquiries may be sent either to Mr. Shirer or to the Goldsmith Music Store, Columbus.

The May Festival this year offers a program of exceptional interest. The Oratorio Society, with one hundred and twenty-five singers, will be assisted by the Theodore Thomas Orchestra of Chicago, under the direction of Frederick Stock, and by five soloists. The soloists are Florence

Hinkle, Nevada Van Der Veer, Reed Miller, Herbert Witherspoon and Hans Letz. The Oratorio Society will sing Max Bruch's "The Cross of Fire" and A. Goring Thomas' "The Swan and the Skylark." In addition a chorus of 353 school children will sing Benoit's "Into the World."

The season ticket for the three concerts sells for $3 and will be reserved a day ahead of single admission tickets, which will sell for $1.50, $1.00 and 75c.

The Danger After Grip

Lies often in a run-down system. Weakness, nervousness, lack of appetite, energy and ambition, with disordered liver and kidneys often follow an attack of this wretched disease. The greatest need then is Electric Bitters, the glorious tonic, blood purifier and regulator of stomach, liver and kidneys. Thousands have proved that they wonderfully strengthen their nerves, build up the system and restore to health and good spirits after an attack of grip. If suffering, try them. Only 50c. Sold and perfect satisfaction guaranteed by F. D. Hall.

HEART AND HOME TALKS BY BARBARA BOYD

Is the Business Woman a Good Home-Maker?

THE charge is often made that business and professional life is unfitting women to be home-makers. The downfall of the home is blamed upon woman's invasion of business, and the woman who earns her living is looked at askance as having lost all taste for the domestic sphere.

But if you look into the matter a little deeply, are these charges true? Aren't there some things underneath the surface of this change in woman's life that are worth considering?

Does not the woman who spends her days in a store or office or making an exhausting round of professional calls appreciate a home more than the woman who lives at home day in and out? Has she not the same appreciation of it that the business man has?

And like the business man, she knows after a day of hard work, what is most wanted in a home. Few things open a woman's eyes to the real essentials of a home like returning to it at night exhausted from a day's work in the world. She appreciates, as no home woman can, what it means to find order and comfort and cheer and rest waiting her. To step from the rushing, wearing world of work into a haven of peace where there is no unkind word, where every taste and wish of the worker have been considered, is to find a home in its truest sense. And nobody comprehends this better than the business woman. The woman who has never had an experience in the business world cannot understand how much this means.

And if you know thorough-going business women, you will find that the majority of them have turned their room or two rooms, as the case may be, into as near a resemblance of a home as they can get. They have made their apartments as cozy and comfortable and home-like as possible. They have pictures and flowers and dainty curtains, and possibly a little tea-table and chafing dish. The domestic instinct in them has expressed itself as much as it can. It hasn't died out.

And not only does a business woman or professional woman appreciate a home, but her business experience has given her the ability to manage a home. And by a business woman is meant the capable woman who handles whatever may be her work thoroughly. The careless, thoughtless girl who half performs her duties, and whose mind is on something other than her tasks will make no more of a success of housework than she does of anything else. But the capable business woman will bring to the task of managing a home, executive ability and big grasp of things. She can see the whole at a glance and quickly decide how the various parts must fit into it. She goes at housekeeping in a businesslike way. She is not bound by traditions or conventions, but goes about her work in the most efficient way to accomplish the end desired. She would run a house in the same thorough-going fashion that she would run a department. She would cut out useless work and poor tools. She would look at the job ahead of her with an eye trained by modern business methods. And in her hands, housekeeping would become a different proposition from what it has been in the past.

So that instead of business or professional life spoiling a woman for the domestic sphere, it really makes her better fitted for it, if she cares to take it up. And it is the trained business or professional woman who will lift housekeeping to a level where much if not all of its old-time drudgery and monotony will be left behind.

—Barbara Boyd.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

The Wrestling Goblin and the King

JACK had been saying that he had just learned a new motto at school. "What is it?" Evelyn wanted to know. "Why," replied Jack, "it's 'Never put off till tomorrow what you can do as well today.'"

"A very good motto," daddy assented. "And that reminds me of a story which you may like to hear."

"Once upon a time, in the good old days when fairies were found in every buttercup and the little birds and the wild creatures of the woods were the friends of the good and true, there lived in England a wise and great king who was said himself to be kin of the fairies."

"It was known that a wise enchanter was his friend and often gave him advice about his kingdom."

"And, though this king was so wise that his name is still known in England as that of the most wonderful king who ever ruled the Britons, he sometimes made mistakes. His name, I may as well tell you, was Arthur."

"Arthur was the strongest man and the most skillful fighter in the country. Some persons said there was no one in the world like him."

"But one day the great Merlin, who was his adviser or prime minister, thought he would teach King Arthur a lesson. So by means of the magic in which he was skilled Merlin made a queer creature, all head and arms, appear before King Arthur and dare him to a wrestling match."

"Arthur smiled when he saw the figure. Perhaps his friend Merlin was in the habit of playing tricks like this on the king, for his majesty did not seem to be in the least surprised and frightened by a sight odd enough to scare persons unused to such visitors out of a year's growth."

"Oh, yes; I'll wrestle with you some time!" the king said. "But not today. I'm very busy, you see."

"The next day the figure came again, but Arthur had another reason for putting it off. Arthur thought then, but he wasn't sure, that the figure looked a little larger than the day before."

"The next day it came back and the next and next. Always the king had some excuse why he had not time to wrestle with the goblin, and each day it grew bigger and bigger until at last it became of such an alarmingly large size that the king felt that it would not be safe to put off the match a minute longer."

"So Arthur rose, and the goblin and the king wrestled long and furiously. At last it looked as though the goblin might win, but Arthur would not give up. At last he had the goblin down and ready to say it was beaten."

"As the goblin rose to its feet it said:

"Never put off a task till tomorrow that can be done as well today."

"Then the goblin vanished and was never seen more."

JAMES E. THOMAS DIED AT COLUMBUS FRIDAY EVENING

Was Head of the Newark Machine Company and one of the Pioneer Citizens of Newark

James E. Thomas, the veteran foundryman of this city, died at Columbus Friday evening at 6 o'clock. Mr. Thomas was one of the pioneer industrial promoters of the city and up to two years ago he was actively engaged in the management of the James E. Thomas company foundry.

Mr. Thomas would have been 84 years old in May and has resided in Newark since 1855. He was born in Cornwall County, England, May 12, 1828 and in 1849 came to America. He resided in New York until 1855 when he located here and took charge of the foundry of the Newark Machine company. In New York City in 1852 Mr. Thomas married Miss Emily Lusby, who was born in London, England, December 21, 1830. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas had twelve children, nine of whom are now surviving. One son, Edward died but a year ago. The children living are Mrs. B. H. Brown and Mr. A. L. Thomas, living at the home, Mrs. Charles Genert and Mrs. F. E. Symons of Pittsburg, Mrs. John Goldstone of Alameda, Calif., George B. Thomas of Portland, Ore., Mrs. F. H. Gilbert of Longbeach, Calif., Charles F. Thomas of Washington, D. C., and James Thomas of this city.

In the death of Mr. Thomas Newark has lost one of her most prominent and influential business men. He came to Newark with but little money and by his honest endeavors has left as a monument to his memory the splendid enterprise with which he was so inseparably connected. This iron foundry was established in Newark in 1807 by Mr. Thomas, commencing with but a small building and nine or ten men employed in the manufacture of cook stoves from which the owner gradually drifted into the general machine and foundry business which he continued with marked success.

Until 1893 Mr. Thomas conducted the business alone when the enterprise was incorporated as the James E. Thomas company, with a capital stock of $30,000. Employment is now given to about fifty men. During the past two years illness the business has been in charge of Mr. James Thomas and Mr. Abe Thomas.

On March 18 of this year, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas surrounded by their family celebrated the 60th anniversary of their marriage. Mr. Thomas has long been affiliated with the Masonic fraternity and has attained the rank of the thirty-second degree Mason. He was also a member of the Shriners.

The body was brought to Newark from Columbus Saturday and the funeral will be held at the Thomas home 111 East Main street on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. T. A. Cosgrove, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, of which the deceased was a member, officiating. Friends are invited to the service but the burial, which will be made at Cedar Hill cemetery, will be private.

BADLY INJURED WHILE BREAKING A YOUNG COLT

J. R. Dollison of 36 Vine street, sustained severe injuries Friday afternoon when a young colt he was breaking, took fright at a dog and ran away. Mr. Dollison was thrown from the sulky in which he was riding, being hurled against a fence and dragged by the frightened animal some distance before he was able to control the horse.

Mr. Dollison took the animal to the Mt. Vernon road for a short drive. A dog ran barking from a yard and frightened the nervous horse, causing him to run away. When Dollison was thrown from the rig, he sustained a great gash in his head and his ear was almost severed from his head.

He was able to reach his home where Dr. D. M. Smith was called to render surgical attention to his wounds. It required eighteen stitches to close the wound in his head and six to restore the ear to its former position.

The colt and outfit were uninjured in the runaway. This was only the second time the horse had been driven.

LINEN VENDER IS BUNCOING NEWARK WOMEN

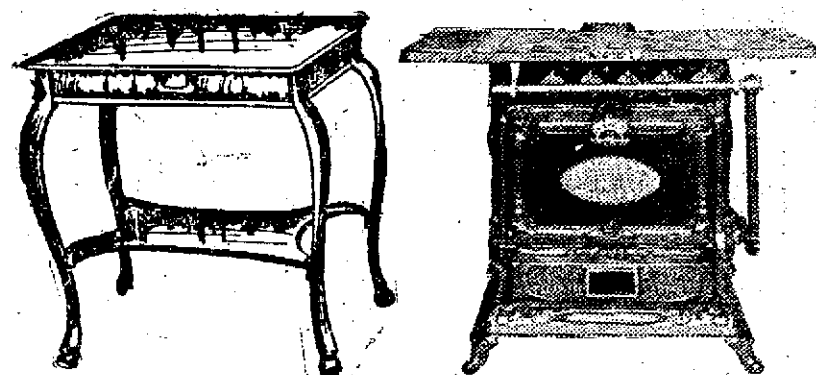

It would seem that a number of the good housewives about the city and some who are not housewives were humbugged by a vender of linens about the city yesterday. The man selling the merchandise insists upon his customer examining and putting to the test known for linens a sample of the linen which he gives them. He to all appearances cuts the linen from the bolt he carries, but in cutting the sample he exchanges the sample with another which he carries in the palm of his hand. The sample received is not the one cut from the bolt which contains only a very poor grade of linen. A number of large purchases were made and the man is working in great haste saying he wishes to catch a train out of the city this evening. He gives as an explanation his ability to sell the "great quality of goods" at such a remarkably low price that he succeeded in smuggling it into this country.

PRAISES WORK OF ARTIST WHITE

The automobile business has risen in slightly over a decade from insignificance to the third largest of American industries. For this reason it and its products have constantly been described in superlatives. But the purchasing public has learned to look further into the cars than formerly, and knows that the real ability of automobiles may be prejudged by three things, namely, the mechanical construction, the company manufacturing them, and lastly their appearance.

Here you find a self starter, a 30 horse-power ball-bearing four cylinder motor, a multiple disc clutch, a selective sliding gear transmission, a full floating rear axle, shaft drive, I-beam front axle, long wheel-base, long resilient springs, dual ignition, and a roomy comfortable body. At their prices $1,150 for the touring models and $1,120 for the roadsters, these cars occupy positions of their own.

appearance, up-to-date and pleasing, a car of which any motorist might be proud. The contour is that which has proved most popular, flush sided, with enclosed front, inside control, and straight lines. In upholstery, finish, and attention to details the Courier represents a class of motor cars selling for several hundred dollars more.

The Courier is constructed throughout by a company which is conceded to be the foremost in the automobile industry in this country. For these cars the best of materials have been purchased, the great factory in Detroit, is equipped with splendid machinery and the workmanship is the equal of that in any motor car plant. This combination can and does produce only cars which have been proven correct in principle and practice. Further investigation of this point, in this short space becomes unnecessary. The Courier is right, else it would not be constructed and covered with the guarantee adopted by the United States Motor Company.

Your impression of the Courier must therefore align itself as follows: here are cars which are marketed through the United States Motor Car Company and sold under its liberal guarantee, whereby the purchaser is assured of their correct design and perfection of materials and workmanship. They are fully equipped, including the self starter, therefore they are complete cars. They are large, easy riding, roomy and of a pleasing appearance, therefore cars which prove eminently satisfactory in service, and compare favorably in the company of much higher priced products.

Moreover, at the prices at which they are sold, you see in them automobiles with reason in every detail, and an offering in motor car values which has never been equalled. Examine the photographs which follow, and note these points. The Courier cars are not described extravagantly, because they speak most convincingly for themselves.

At the conclusion of the meeting of the Board of Trade directors Thursday night the members visited the city building, Corner Fourth and Main, and in company with Mayor Swartz, Safety Director Collier and Fire Chief Bancro made an inspection of the entire building. The unanimous opinion of the members of the Board and the city officials was that the building is unsafe and unfit for use. The walls are badly cracked, the floors are uneven and sagging walls and the building is in the opinion of the committee unfit for use.

Columbus, April 20.—"We are not shooting at empty air. We have the evidence and are merely confirming our previous knowledge," Attorney General Timothy S. Hogan yesterday in making the above announcement relative to the grand jury investigation now going on here into the legislative scandal of the last General Assembly and possible perjury in the Andrews, Diegel and Huffman trials, declared that startling results would come from the grand jury work.

Mr. Hogan stated that the grand jury would resume its hearings Monday. More than two score of witnesses have been summoned, and these will have to undergo the quizzing of both the Franklin County Prosecutor and the Attorney-General. Many State Senators and Representatives whose names have been mentioned in connection with the scandal will testify before the grand jury as to happenings both before and after the arrest of the men who have been tried and the others who are yet to be brought to trial.

This situation has led to the general belief that one of possible several persons will be indicted on charges of having accepted bribes. Others, according to rumors current, will be compelled to answer to charges of perjury in connection with their statements during the trials of Andrews and Hogan.

Attorney-General Hogan intimated that developments in the present investigation might be forthcoming early next week.

The above expression is one which is used frequently in connection with hair preparations. Just exactly what is meant by it in each instance is a question. Baldness is not a disease and hence, does not permit of a cure. It is a result invariably to be traced to the dandruff germ and if the condition has become chronic, that is, if there is complete atrophy of the hair follicles, a "cure" is absolutely impossible.

Approaching baldness, seen in falling hair, may always be checked and if the hair follicles are not atrophied, the hair may be induced again to grow.

This is accomplished by regular applications of Newbro's Herpicide which cleanses the scalp and kills the dandruff germ. The destruction of the germ does away with the accumulations of scurf skin and thus eliminates the most common enemy to beautiful hair.

FRANK T. MERCER.
Frank T. Mercer is a candidate for the nomination for County Auditor on the Democratic ticket.
Reason that appeals to taxpayers why he should be given this place is that the new tax laws make it the duty of the County Auditor to appraise all incorporated companies except public service companies for taxation.
Mr. Mercer having kept the books of incorporated companies and other large business houses is familiar with trial balances and balance sheets and can be of material benefit not only to the Democratic party but to all taxpayers of Licking county in getting such property on the tax duplicate in harmony with other property. He invites comparisons and asks you to give him your vote.

"I am now thoroughly convinced that after many years and trying many different ones I have found the right medicine. I feel like a different man. My physical strength is increasing every day. I feel that I owe you more than I will ever be able to pay. Wade's Golden Nervine is a Godsend." Phil Hargraves, Henderson, Ky.

Every man and woman in America can secure the One True Package of this great Restorative Tonic by simply sending name to Gem Medicine Co., St. Louis, Mo. Wade's Golden Nervine is now sold by druggists everywhere at $1. There has never been a medicine compounded anywhere by anyone which equals it for the cure of Nervous Debility, Neurasthenia, Insomnia, Weak Heart, and all Nervous and run down conditions in men and women. Use this gift with the assurance that it will promptly renew vigor and vitality as nothing else can. Wade's Golden Nervine is sold by W. A. Frman & Son.

Look over the Wants tonight.

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heart-burn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at these will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of native American medical forest plants. TWO HUNDRED MORE MIGHT HAVE BEEN SAVED, CLAIM OF YOUNGSTOWN, O., WOMAN

New York, April 20.—Miss Caroline Bonnell, who with Miss Lilly Bonnell and Mrs. George D. Wick and daughter, Natalie, of Youngstown, O., was returning home from abroad on the Titanic, states that the confidence begot by the boats of the unsinkable qualities of the Titanic, almost complete unconcern on the part of the ship's officers as to the condition of the Titanic and the lack of lifeboats were responsible for the terrible loss of life when the Titanic sank.

"It was a few minutes before midnight when the ship struck the iceberg," Miss Bonnell said. "I had just gotten up from bed to get a drink of water when a tremor ran through the boat. It wasn't a hard shock, but coming at that time all of us were somewhat worried."

"I hurriedly dressed and with Aunt Elizabeth hurried to the deck. Other passengers were arriving, each asking what the trouble was. Officers told us not to worry—that the ship had a little accident, but everything was all right. No one grew excited. 'Oh, nothing can happen to us,' was heard on all sides. 'This ship is unsinkable.' But a little while later officers came and told us to go to an upper deck."

"Soon we were told to go to a higher deck. But always came the reassuring word from the officers that everything was all right. The rush of the water could be plainly heard. Some one suggested that we put on life preservers. Nearly every one on deck followed the suggestion. And then came the order to prepare the lifeboats."

"At first nearly every one demurred. One believed the ship would sink. And they objected to going out into an open boat at that time in the morning. But the officers insisted and more in a spirit of lark than from fear the women got into the boats."

"Our party went into the second boat launched on the portside. Officers of the ship were then insisting that the women get in first. There was no confusion, no trouble. Everything was more in the spirit of a picnic than anything else."

"When we were about to be put into the boat I heard that on the other side—the starboard side—both men and women were entering the boats. Many women refused to get into the boats to leave their husbands. This accounts for the fact that so many men were saved."

"I saw Colonel Astor kiss his bride and say: 'I will be with you soon.'"

"Mr. Ismay was here, there and everywhere, helping, encouraging and doing everything possible for the people, and so was Major Butt."

"The night was bright and clear—the stars making it possible to see a great distance. In our boat were thirty women, two carmen and a steward. Far in the distance we thought we saw a light. The men started to row for it. They rowed until they were tired, and then quit for awhile. Then the women in a spirit of fun took the oars and pulled for awhile. I pulled one oar."

"The Titanic was fading—in the distance, but her lights were quite visible. About twenty minutes after we were put in the boat we noticed that the giant ship was sinking low in the water. Then for the first time we realized that it was in danger, and our lark turned into a frightened party of women."

"Lower and lower sank the Titanic. The faint strains of a band came to us. Then all of a sudden the lower lights seemed to go out. Only the lights on the upper deck were visible."

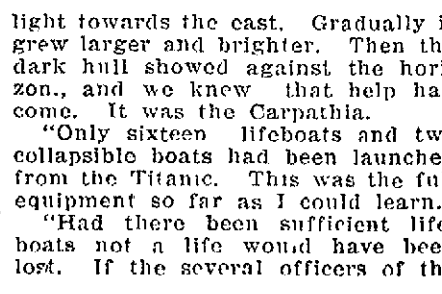

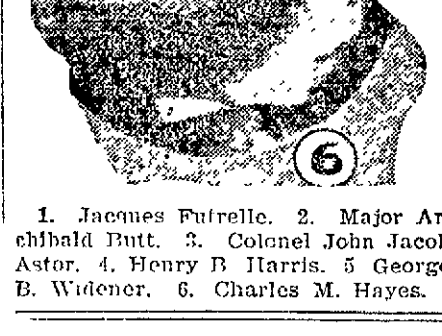

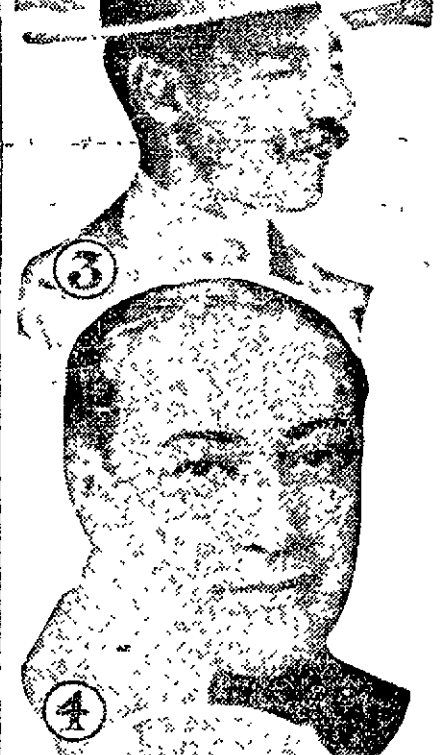

"And then we saw the ship sink—this great unsinkable liner. It did not plunge, as far as we could see, but seemed to settle lower and lower into the water and went down gently, grandly to its grave."

"Then the full horror of the thing came over us. We were frightened, but the men in the boat tried to reassure us. They told us that those left behind on the boat would surely leave it—sit they would be picked up in a short time."

"We were on the water about five hours. It was cold, but most of us had sufficient wraps to protect us. 'When dawn broke we saw we were in an ice field. Small bergs were all about us. But we rowed carefully and had no trouble. In all directions we could see the other boats, but only a great waste of water where we last saw the Titanic. 'Shortly after 4 o'clock we saw a

BABY PITIFUL SIGHT WITH ECZEMA

Completely Covered, Bandaged from Head to Foot. Dared Not Wash Him, Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment 4 Weeks and He Was Cured.

"A few days after birth we noticed an inflamed spot on our baby's hip which soon began spreading until baby was completely covered even in his eyes, ears and scalp. For eight weeks he was bandaged from head to foot. He could not have a stitch of clothing on. Our regular physician pronounced it chronic eczema. He is a very able physician and ranks with the best in this locality, nevertheless the disease began spreading until baby was completely covered. He was losing flesh so rapidly that we became alarmed and decided to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. 'Not until I commenced using Cuticura Soap and Ointment could we tell what he looked like, as we dared not wash him, and I had been putting on ointment as much as I could. On removing the scale from his head the hair came off, and left him entirely bald, but since we have been using Cuticura Soap and Ointment he has grown hair as ever. Four weeks after we began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment he was entirely cured. I don't believe anyone could have eczema worse than this baby.'"

"Before we used the Cuticura Remedies we could hardly look at him, he was such a pitiful sight. He would fuss until I would treat him, they seemed to relieve him so much. Cuticura Soap and Ointment stand by themselves and the result they quickly and surely bring is their own recommendation." (Signed) Mrs. T. B. Rosser, Mill Hill, Pa., Feb. 20, '11. Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 29A, Boston, for a liberal sample of each, post-free, with 32-p. book on the skin.

ship had realized the danger a hundred. Even two hundred more lives could have been saved. The sea was calm. Anything buoyant would have kept people afloat."

"Had the officers attended to their duty properly when the boats were launched the death toll would not have been so great. On the starboard side of the boat the people were practically allowed to do as they pleased. One boat was sent away with five passengers. It could have held fifty, as could all the other lifeboats. Another boat had sixteen passengers. Few of them, as far as I could learn, had more than did ours, which contained thirty."

"I cannot understand just why so many lost their lives unless it was because no desperate remedies were resorted to by the officers when they found the ship sinking. They all believed in the ship's supposedly unsinkable qualities. No one believed it would go to the bottom."

"Even when it was sinking lower and lower in the water, the officers, I learn, were telling those still on board that the water tight compartments of the ship would keep it afloat. It was only when the liner sank to the level of the water, with her every compartment full of water that the passengers still on board became panic stricken—knew that death was before them. From other survivors I learn that many of the men equipped with life preservers, jumped from the ship and attempted to swim out of range of the vortex that would follow its sinking. But none of those were picked up. From the water only those who were in the boats lived to tell the story."

"I do not know what happened to the wireless instrument on the Titanic after the first help calls were sent out. The dynamo of the ship seemed to be in perfect condition and the lights burned until the last."

"Many of the women on board, who were rescued by boats, were quite sick for a time from exposure, but I think most of them are better now," she said. "There were rumors that some had died, but I do not know the truth of this."

Asked if she could explain why the Carpathia did not send wireless details of the catastrophe, Miss Bonnell said she supposed these had been sent.

MEN WERE KNEELING WHILE BAND PLAYED

New York, April 20.—Mrs. Ada M. Clarke, one of the survivors of the ill-fated Titanic, went to the White Star offices to arrange for her passage back home to Southampton, England.

Her husband, Charles V. Clarke, with whom she was on her way to California to make her home in San Francisco, was lost on the vessel when she sank. Mrs. Clarke was one of the persons rescued from the last boat.

"I was in one of three boats lashed together," said Mrs. Clarke. "When one of the officers unlashed one of them and taking all but two of the seamen, rowed off to rescue another boat in the distance which was crowded to the sinking point."

"Be brave women," the officer said as he rowed away. And they were brave. The women and the two men manned the oars until we were rescued later. How long I don't know, but it seemed many hours. We shouldn't have gone unless they had made us."

Her husband stood at the rail of the second deck and she saw him go down with the ship.

"He made me leave him," she said brokenly. "I shouldn't have done so otherwise. Oh, they were all brave and splendid, all the men. They died like brave men. At the last all the men were kneeling and there floated out across the water the strains of 'Nearer, My God, to Thee.' I could hear it and saw the band men kneeling, too."

Asked if she saw the iceberg she said: "Yes, yes, it was big and black, black."

It is estimated that there remains to be excavated from the Clebra cut, on account of slides, 4,300,000 cubic yards of material. The cut is about 86 per cent completed.

FRATERNAL ORDERS

Red Men.

Minnewa Tribe, No. 52, met in regular council Friday night. The relief chiefs reported the sick list is about clear, only two brothers being unable to follow the hunt. This is the first time this winter that the sick list has been almost clear, as we have had a great deal of sickness and two deaths. The chief's degree was conferred upon a class of 12 brothers, and after the council the brothers were quenched all retired to the banquet room for corn and venison. Several applications for membership are to be passed upon for the adoption degree the first regular meeting in May and it is the desire of the tribe to have 300 members on the first of July and the warriors and braves are taking the trail after their paleface friends to accomplish this mark. Several visiting brothers were present Friday night. The great council of Ohio will meet at Springfield May 11 and some of the members of Minnewa Tribe will attend. The adoption degree will be conferred at the first regular meeting in May. Visiting brothers are always welcome around the council fire of Minnewa Tribe.

Modern Woodmen.
Cedar Camp, No. 4727, met in regular session Monday night. The entertainment committee reported that its part of the program for next Monday night when Johnstown Camp visits us, was completed and everything would be ready for that night. No word has been received how many neighbors will come from Johnstown, but the committee will be prepared to take care of all who come. On Monday night, April 23, a meeting has been arranged for a further discussion of the new rates and plans of the Modern Woodmen, which take effect Jan. 1, 1913.

I. O. O. F.
Sunday afternoon, April 23, at 2:30 o'clock at the Odd Fellows' hall services will be held commemorating the 93d birthday of Odd Fellowship in America.

There will be good music by an orchestra and speakers capable of interesting all Odd Fellows and enlightening the public as to the true aims and objects of Odd Fellowship. The meeting is open to all. Every Odd Fellow is expected to pay a tribute of respect to the order by being present and inviting his friends, whether they be Odd Fellows or not. Come and bring your wife and daughter and see that the young men of your acquaintance attend. In connection with this announcement a few remarks relative to the history of our order may be of interest to the uninformed and help to pave the way to a closer understanding of Odd Fellowship, its rapid and enormous growth and the great and good work it is accomplishing.

The Baltimore American, under date of March 27, 1819, contained the following notice: "Notice to all Odd Fellows: A few members of the society of Odd Fellows will be glad to meet their brethren for consultation upon the subject of forming a lodge." Five brothers met on Monday, April 26, 1819, and constituted themselves Washington Lodge of Odd Fellows. This was the birth of the order in America and this day is to be celebrated by appropriate exercises on the afternoon of April 28, as stated above. The origin of the order, however, is of antique date. It was first established during the reign of Nero, the Roman emperor, and the name Odd Fellows was given to the order by Titus Caesar.

Our guide is with the present accomplishments of the order and its growth in America. Because of the health and vigor of its principles and the beauty of its lessons, men are disposed to confide in its fitness as an agent of good. The rapid growth of the order in America is best shown by the following figures, which are official. In 1819 there was one lodge in America, with a membership of only 5. In 1906 there were 15,637 lodges in America, with a membership of 1,362,310, and in addition there were 7770 Rebekah lodges, with a membership of 533,951.

The Odd Fellows of America in 1906 paid to the families of brothers in sickness or distress, $5,005,753.37.

Attend our meeting April 28, at 2:30 and hear what our speakers have to say.

Newark Lodge will confer the second degree Tuesday evening, April 23. While this will be an Olive Branch meeting, all Newark Lodge members are expected to be present. This is to be a union degree team for the evening, and Olive Branch and Newark Lodge candidates will be given the degree in one class.

Home Guards of America.
Newark Home, No. 34, met in regular session Wednesday evening, April 17, with a good attendance. The sick were all reported better. A regular routine of business was transacted. Bro. Geo. Layton was elected Guide. Our next meeting will be held Wednesday night, April 27. The banquet committee has arranged to serve refreshments free to all members. All members are requested to come and enjoy themselves. Visiting members are always welcome. Banquets are a good thing. It pays to get the members of a home around the banquet table. There they can be made to feel the ties of brotherhood and fraternity in a most practical manner.

Octagon Tent is having a revival and many faces are again seen at review that have not been present for a long time. The second degree was exemplified by the team in good shape and 12 applications were received and elected. These will be admitted at the next review May 1. There will probably be a called meeting Thursday evening. Come into the office tonight and get particulars. Deputy Sharp is still here and is doing good work.

Knights of Pythias.
The conferring of the rank of Page on three candidates was witnessed by about 50 of the members of Roland Lodge, No. 305, at the regular meeting last Tuesday night. The work was handled in the new form by the team in a highly commendable manner, making this rank one of the most interesting of the three, and in a way to reflect great credit upon the members. Next Tuesday night the Esquire rank will be conferred upon three Pages, so let there be a good turn out of the members. Roland Lodge Knight rank team has accepted an invitation to go to Johnstown next Thursday night and put on the Knight rank, and it is important that every member of the team be at drill practice at Castle Hall Monday night at 7:30. It is hoped that as many members as possible will accompany the team to Johnstown and report at the regular meeting next Tuesday evening, that arrangements may be made to accommodate them in transportation.

BESSIE HOUP

GRANTED DIVORCE

The matter of Edward Houpt vs. Bessie Houpt, an action for divorce, was decided in probate court Saturday afternoon. In reviewing the testimony the court stated that it had been shown that there had been considerable trouble at various times between the parties in the case, and that this had led to numerous separations, at which times the plaintiff had done little or nothing toward the support of the defendant. In granting a decree of divorce to the defendant the court stated that the main consideration was the transaction on which the defendant based her cross petition, and that while the testimony did not show absolute proof of the gross misdemeanor the position of the plaintiff was most compromising. The court stated that after questioning the parties to the suit a little more fully an order for alimony would be granted the defendant, but that it would not be as large amount as it would have been had the defendant not been in some measure indiscreet in some of her actions.

THE CASE OF NEWARK, OHIO

Collier's, the great National Weekly, the publication that carries the strongest editorial pages, the magazine that is most liked and most hated and incidentally one of the "most circulated" contains in the current number a very complimentary reference to Newark.

Under the caption "Making Our Towns and Cities," Chalmers Lowell Pancoast, a former Newark young man, who is now a town promotion expert and noted magazine writer, first refers to the development of Marinetti, Wisconsin, and "The Case of Newark, Ohio" is treated in this language:

"The movement of rebuilding towns and cities has been spreading over the United States like wildfire, but even yet we are only entering the new era of the making over of towns. There are thousands of towns that must be built over again. They are constructed hurriedly with the building of the railroads. They went through the boom with a hurrah, a kick and a jump. They then settled down and became satisfied. They are now drifting backward in a rut. But they cannot rest in peace. The rebuilding of other towns around the satisfied ones will arouse in them the spirit of self-preservation.

Sometimes a town meets with a disaster or a disgrace which requires a period of hard fighting in the work of rebuilding and making. Newark, Ohio has made a notable record for wiping out a city's disgrace. A lynching on the public square placed a blot upon the town's fair name, but Newark's atonement was instantaneous and courageous. The Board of Trade, composed of the city's progressive business men, formed a strong arm in cleaning up the city.

In a whirlwind membership campaign nearly 800 new members were enrolled in a few days, and then began a campaign of work which has made the world forget the disgrace and think only of the surprising results achieved by earnest co-operation in this town. On "Clean-up" Day more than 1,400 wagon loads of rubbish were taken out of the city. On Arbor Day more than 300 trees were planted in the city. With interesting ceremonies, based on civic pride, 3,000 school children assembled in the public square park, and planted a large number of the trees. The year's accomplishments included the building of miles of new sidewalks, sixty miles of "good roads" entering the city, passage of bill by Legislature looking to the establishment of children's playgrounds, passage of ordinances for the protection of local business men and the locating of several big industries.

"The 'Town Boosters' also conducted a 'Keep Your Money at Home' campaign; they gave cash prizes to children for the prettiest flower beds, brought about by the construction of a $10,000 country clubhouse, solved the 'Town Boy Problem' through securing lands for playgrounds, raised money for a public library, improved the courthouse parks by installing sanitary fountains, illuminated the courthouse dome to make a favorable impression on visitors coming into the city.

Mr. Pancoast tells of the splendid effect of a "get together" dinner at Albuquerque, N. M., treats of Kalamazoo's problem and in conclusion says: "The work of rebuilding towns requires careful planning. The big first cannot be applied in a bullying manner. Skill in town developing is measured by diplomacy and the ability to keep things running smoothly and harmoniously."

The business of a big organization—the commercial club, board of trade, or whatever it may be called—is particularly delicate and complex. A lot of people want to know: "Why is a commercial club, anyway? Haven't we our city administration?" Yes, but that is politics—a commercial club represents, or should represent, unselfish, loyal civic patriotism. Among the objects of a well-organized commercial club the following might be mentioned:

The establishment of a news bureau to advertise the city.

The publication of facts on growth and attractions of the city.

Seeing the strangers and visitors to the city are properly entertained.

Seeing that new citizens are met and introduced and made to feel at home.

The encouragement of steam and electric railways.

Promoting and encouraging factories.

Encouragement of public institutions.

Influencing the public to appreciate their city and patronize home industries.

Compiling and publishing industrial and commercial statistics.

Compiling and publishing matter showing the city's attractions, such as parks, public buildings, universities, etc.
